CLOSE TO BALL TIMES

WILL BE ON THE DIAMOND.

Series of Spring Games-Personnel of the Indianapolis Club for the Coming Season.

Well, here it is, March 1, and the baseball season only four weeks away. Four weeks from to-morrow the young blood of the Indianapolis team will go against the veterans and the followers of the national game will be afforded their first opportunity to get "a line" on the merits of the new members of line" on the merits of the new members of the team. There will be two of these games, March 30 and 31, and then the regular April series will begin with the Butler College club, which plays here the first and second of that month. April 3, the Indian

On April 9 and 10 the champions will play at Cincinnati. April 11 and 12 the Louisvilles will play here and the Pittsburgs follow April 13 and 14. Anson. and his Chicago men come next for one game April 15, the University of Michigan team on the 16th, Fort Wayne April 17 and 18 and Cleveland will wind up the exhibition season here April 20. The Western League's championship season will probably open April 21, so it will be readily seen that the champions have plenty of work cut out from the time they arrive here until the season closes

Manager Watkins will, in a few days, notify the members of the Indianapolis team to report here on Wednesday, March 25. They are all in the fold now except Metz and McCarthy, who are holding out for more money. It is likely that both will sign in the next ten days, however. They can do no better elsewhere than right here in Indianapolis, where they are great favorites. With their contracts in and that "star" catcher Watkins hopes to get the team will be complete and will read as Pitchers—Phillips, Cross, Damon, Weimar, Hansen, Monroe, Catchers—Wood, Grim, Butler and the "unknown." First base, Motz; second base, Stewart; third base, McCormick; shortstop, Roat; left field, Con-nor; center field, McCarthy; right field, Hogriever. Stewart will be captain.

Manager Watkins left last night for St Paul to attend the schedule meeting, which will be held there to-morrow. Indianapoils is on the schedule committee, but will have very little voice in the make-up, owing to prevailing conditions in the Western League. This city is too important a factor in the organization, however, to be "thrown down" in the matter of good dates. The clubs all had big gate receipts at one time or another here last season, and they have a wholesome respect for the champions' drawing powers. It would be manifestly to their disadvantage, therefore, to slight this city in the schedule make-up. In any event, Indianapolis will make no protest, realizing the futility of it. President Johnson can always be counted upon to see that no "kick" made by Ladianapolis grees. He always has a very land of the city Hospital, contemplate the scene. He always has a ver-dict on tap against Watkins's men.

Some people have been hugging the fond delusion that Billy Gray would be allowed | the torrent that was welling from the gapto return to Indianapolis this season. They imagined that the was the "unknown" catcher referred to mysteriously from time to time in the baseball columns. Cincinnati will scarcely spare Gray this season. It is true that in Peitz and Vaughn the Reds have first-class backstops, but the latter may have to go to first any day, as Buck Ewing cannot be relied on to play steadily through the season. That would leave only Peltz, and should he be injured, Gray would be something of a necessity. Besides this, Gray is too valuable a utility man to be spared. He can play the infield or outfield, as Indianaplis people well know, with the best of the season of the accused has been impaired by disease, from brooding over certain alleged wrongs and indignities, which he believed had been perpetrated on him team, and especially to one making a hard fight in the National League race. Cincinnati signed Schriver not long ago, but he will probably be found in the Western League ranks when the season opens, though not with Indianapolis. Watkins may spring that catcher on the public when he gets back from the St. Paul meeting.

When Comiskey traded Eddie Boyle for Spies and Shugart, he must have had Manager McCloskey, of Louisville, hypnotized for he got about ten to one the best of the deal. Spies would fit in very handily with the champions this season, but there is no prospect of getting him. St. Paul will hold on to him fast enough. Comiskey also has Kraus, another good backstop, who can also, in an emergency, play the infield, and play Eddie McFarland has not yet signed his St. Louis contract, ... fact, nothing has been heard of him since last fall.

The fielding and batting averages of the champions for last season may be of interest and are given below: Newell Hogan Cross91:

Last season Hay & Willits offered one of their high-grade "Outlings" to the player having the best general average at the close of the season. This list of averages shows that Frank Motz has won the wheel, which will be presented to him at the opening game of the championship season A letter from McCormick to Manager Watkins, received yesterday, requests that his uniform be well padded, adding that he hoped he would play here all season. McCormick is evidently skeptical about holding his job with the champions. He needn't be, how-ever, if he plays the sort of ball he is capa-ble of, according to his New Orleans admir-ers. McCloskey, of Louisville, says his only fault is a tendency to faint-heartedness. If he can overcome this tendency to weaken, the Louisville manager says, he will be a wonder. Well, in the company of cham-pions he will doubtless cultivate a superb nerve and be a big success in 1896.

Pleasant-Run Bridge Contract. The County Commissioners yesterday awarded the contract for building the new iron bridge over Pleasant run at Prospect street to the Toledo Bridge Company. The company's bid was $1,620. The stone work was let to Fife & Hicks, at $6.75 a cubic yard. This Morning-The Closing Argument.

The case of Alonzo Rooker, who murdered his wife by cutting her throat with a razor, rests with a jury of twelve men who had not, at 3 o'clock this morning. reached an agreement. The last argument in the case was made yesterday afternoon by Prosecutor Wiltsie. All day the Criminal Court was crowded, and when the jury retired to deliberate shortly before 5 o'clock the occupants of the chairs reluctantly left several large gatherings of veterans.

He says Massachusetts still holds the honor of being the banner State for patriotism and vigor in G. A. R. circles. That State leads in the matter of pensions and assistance to veterans. Since the close of the war, it has paid out $22,000,000 to the old solutions and is now paying out $600,000 a year. their seats. Judge McCray arranged with verdict left early. Three or four women sat in a dark corner of the room most of the evening, conversing in whispers. They were relatives of Rooker. The prisoner's uncle, a Morgan county farmer, paced the corridors of the courthouse uneasily until late, waiting to get the news to carry back to the aged father of the wretched man. He said Rooker's crime had been a terrible blow to the old father, who is past eighty years of age.

About 10 o'clock court bailiff Royster took a half peck of apples up to the jury room, and it was then stated by one of the jurers that an early agreement was not likely.

The judge and attorneys will meet at the court room at 9 o'clock this morning to receive the verdict if one has been reached.

Charles S. Wiltsie, for the State, did not get through his argument until nearly 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His speech was long and exhaustive. In replying to some of the points made by the defense the presecutor said: "Mr. Hugg, in his effort to slander and traduce the dead, directs your attention to the Good Book and reads from Proverbs vii as follows: 'I have decked my bed with at the bar. It also presupposes a guadily furnished room and bed, decked with tapestry and fine linen and perfumed with myrrh, aloes and cinnamon. When you consider the picture drawn by Mr. Hugg, consider also the scene to which I directed your attention in the Moody Block. Look in upon laggie Rooker as she sits in her bitterness of desolation, with no place wherein to lay her head, and see if you behold in that room any of the evidences pictured to you in the proverb. Her only earthly possessions, a set of bed springs, four pillows, two old comforts and four chairs. Mr. Kealing says the proverb to apply in this case should read that the good man has returned home with a bag of money, which he deposits in his wife's lap. We think it far more proper in this case that the language should be so changed to make it applicable here so that it will read thus: When the good man needeth money, he speaketh to Stella and saith, 'Stella, loan me fifteen.' Stella heedeth not but lendeth it to Mrs. Rooker. The good man then saith to Maggie, his wife, Give me five, and let us go hence in search of a house.' And straightway the good man betaketh himself-and the five to the Corn Exchange and filleth up. He seeth his off-spring in rags when he returneth at night without a bag of money. When the good man needeth money he straightway sendeth forth his wife to strange men and waiteth her return. But was unto her when she refuses to comfort, respect, support and live with the good man, for her days are num-bered and her sufferings and punishment great. The good man gone from home on a long journey. He fleeth when no man pur-such and leaveth his wife and she sendeth for arnica and bindeth up her wounds." These words of the prosecutor referred to Rooker's assault on his wife in the Smith Block. Mr. Wiltsie appealed to the jury in closing in the following language:

"Every gaping wound on the person of Maggie Rooker opens wide as so many mouths and cries, 'Murder! murder! crue! cruel! murder! unavenged! unavenged!' And the people of this State cannot afford that such a cowardly murder as this go unpunished. It is for the living and not the dead that we speak. Maggie Rooker is no more. Gentlemen, when you go to your jury rooms to write your verdict, let your minds go back to that cold September day and standsoul. And hear, mingled with the sound of the death rattle in her throat, her last sup-plication, 'Oh, Lord, have mercy.' No kind father, mother or sister are there to stop ing wound, reddening her winding sheet furnished by the hands of charity. Do this, but this, and when you shall have returned your verdict in open court a message will be sent over the wires to her poor old dying father that the cruel murder of his daughter has been avenged at the hands of an honorable and conscientious jury, and that the ends of justice have been meted out to the cold-blooded assassin and murderer."

Judge McCrea's instructions to the jury by his wife and others. It is for you to determine whether the killing was done when the defendant had no longer sufficient ter of his act. Evidence has been permitted to go to you of the conduct of the deceased during her lifetime, for the purpose of showing what effect, if any, such conduct had upon the mind of the accused, yet such acts furnish no excuse or justifica his killing of her if you, and each of you, are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that he was of sound mind at the time the killing. The fact that the defendant has failed to testify in his own behalf, shall in no wise be considered by you or commented upon by you in making your ver-The attorneys for the prisoner at once served notice on the court that his instructions would be excepted to in the regular The attorneys are much dissatisfied the instructions and say they will object to nearly every paragraph. Strange Story Told in a Complaint by Mary Jaffe. In the divorce suit of Isaac Jaffe against Mary Jaffe, brought a few weeks ago in Room 1, Superior Court, a cross complaint setting up some singular allegations was filed by the defendant yesterday. Jaffe in his original complaint showed that he was married to the defendant in this city Dec. 16, 1895, and alleged that she abandoned him shortly after their marriage. cross complaint admits these facts, but raudulently performed. The plaintiff bout nineteen years of age and is unable to speak the English language. She tells a story of how Jaffe, on the day of their marriage, invited her to go out buggy riding, and after driving about the city an hour or two took her to the courthouse and had her sign a document the character of which she did not at the time understand. then she has learned that she signed an affidavit at the clerk's office. From the courthouse, she says, Jaffe took her to the office of a justice of the peace, and she was induced to go through a strange ceremony. After that a marriage license was placed in her hands and she went home. She did not understand the proceedings until she mitted the license to her brother, and he informed her she had been married. She was indignant at the deception which had been practiced on her and declined to see her new-made husband again.

She Deserved the Divorce. The divorce suit of George S. Pace, an Irvington dairyman, against Sarah A. Pace was tried in the Superior Court yesterday and the decree denied. Pace accused his wife of cruel treatment. He said she falsely charged him with infidelity and struck him with a stove lid lifter. Superstition of Some People Who Apply for License-North Indianapolis Taxes.

Beginning with to-day, any policeman may nake an arrest whenever he discovers a vehicle that has not the proper license plate attached. This includes bicycles. The fine for failure to secure the license is $10. Last year there were nearly 6,000 bicycle licenses self-defense, and Murphy was never ar- issued, while during the first two months of this year only 3,100 have been procured. Thus almost half of those who had licenses last year have failed to secure them this year within the two months of grace. Besides this there were many wheels in use

After making several financial bequests rang- last year on which no license fee was paid. The controller's office presented a busy scene yesterday. There was a constant stream of people who wanted to secure vehicle licenses. Many amusing things occur. Some people want to know the number they will get if a license is purchased immediately. Sometimes it happens that, in the opinion of the would-be purchaser, the number is unlucky and he will wait until Jaycock from Frank C. Jaycock, Lucy E. Stone from R. M. Stone, Lillian Martin from Charles W. Martin, Jennie Poff from Austin Poff, J. H. Larkin from Mattie M. Larkin, and when he learned what number he was to get said he would walt and come in the day. When asked his reason later in the day. When asked his reason "That is the number I had last year and it is the most unlucky thing I ever had. I rode an old wheel until good riding weather a pile of stones and rubbish left by the defendants on Cherry street. The animal was rendered entirely valueless, the plaintiff says, by the accident.

me a cent for repairs during the time I rode it last spring, but as soon as I got a new wheel and a license I began having by the accident.

First I split a rim, and that cost me a cent for repairs during the time I new one. That was $5 more gone. Then I struck a curb and broke a pedal-more went for a new one. became dry. A new cone and cup, with balls, cost me $2 more. By that time I was disgusted and threw away the license plate. After that I had no more accidents, so think I will let some other person have that

He walked out, but came in later in th day and bought his license. This is only of the many hard luck stories that are every day in the controller's office. The peddiers are the most superstituious as to the numbers. It is seldom that a man can be found who will have No. 13, and it is often the case that multiples of this hoodco number are refused.

NORTH INDIANAPOLIS TAXES.

Township Trustee Makepeace Says the City May Have Them. Township Trustee Makepeace called on Controller Johnson vesterday to explain that he would make no objection to the city receiving the benefit of the taxes assessed in North Indianapolis. According to the assessment all that property was included in the Center township duplicate, but Mr. Makepeace says he did not include any re-ceipts from North Indianapolis in making his estimate and levy last year. He thinks that it is just that the taxes should go to the city, for the reason that the city has maintained that suburb ever since a few days after the assessment was made. Concoller Johnson says it will be a comparatively small job to separate the taxes so it can be credited to the city. He thinks two men could do the work in one day.

Chandler & Taylor's Police Protection. The Board of Safety has instructed clerk Herrick to present a bill to Chandler & Taylor for the services of the patrolman who has been detailed for duty at their shop since they had trouble with the striking molders almost a year ago. The trouble is supposed to be at an end, and the necessity for a special guard passed. There was some surprise among the members of the board when they learned that Chandler & Taylor had not been paying for this service.
